Coming Back to First Principles

The nearly verdict of twenty two great States in favor of the Constitutional Amendment whose vital point is contained in the provision for insuring equality of civil rights is but the reaffirmation of a principle which was contended for by the founders of the Republic and which was a cardinal doctrine in the original articles of confederation and perpetual Union adopted in 1777 The Congress that published the Declaration of Independence saying "all men are created equal" when it came to frame articles of confederation, made no distinction of classes, and "knew no caste but the caste of humanity" To them, as Bancroft says in his recent volume "free inhabitants were free citizens Quoting our great historian we find that which gave reality to the Union was the article which secured to the "free inhabitants" of each of the States "all privileges and immunities of free citizens in the several States" By this act they constituted the free inhabitants of the different States one people. Slavery existed in every one of the thirteen States but the "oligarchy of the skin" was not then strong enough to prevent the broadest recognition of the equal rights of citizens without regard to color South Carolina and Georgia alone opposed the article securing equal rights of inter citizenship in the several States to the free black inhabitants of any State It is a curious fact that these States are the first to oppose this concession in our own day They sought then as they seek now, to have inter citizenship confined to the white man But the Congress of 1777 refused to recede from the universal principle on which American institutions were to be founded As Bancroft says, "this decision was not due to the excitement of impassioned philanthropy," for slavery existed in all the States—though much regretted—and the black man was not commonly regarded as an equal, but Congress fixed its purpose on a broad principle and resolved to be consistent before the world whose sympathies it implored. When it resolved upon independence, and had to decide on whom a demand could be made to maintain that independence, it defined as members of a colony all persons abiding within it and deriving protection from its laws and charged the guilt of treason on all members of the United Colonies who should adhere to the King of Great Britain Now, therefore, when inter State rights were to be confided to the members of each State, it looked upon every freeman who owed primary allegiance to the State as a citizen of State"—that is, of the Republic "The free black inhabitant owed allegiance, and was entitled to equal civil rights, and so was a citizen."

This principle was afterwards recognized by the Convention which framed the Constitution, although it was not stated so explicitly as to prevent its practical abandonment in later years so far as it related to the free colored inhabitants of the country. The proposition to engraft it with unmistakable plainness upon the organic law of the Republic, is a legitimate result of the revolutionary struggle and of the suppression of the rebellion "The present is always the lineal descendent of the past" The Republic will not be consistent with the profession until this principle is emphatically reaffirmed and impartially enforced Neither can peace coexist with continued injustice to any class Any law or custom based on prejudice and resulting in proscription, inevitably breeds disturbance The shortest road to political quiet is in political fairness. A settlement that satisfies one class by violating the rights of another, or by sacrificing some right principle, is an invitation to future trouble. These are truisms which derive fresh force from the events of the last six years Through the results of rebellion we have a large addition to "free inhabitants" If we cowardly refuse to recognize their citizenship, and to accord them equal civil rights as such, we shall deserve the new evils that will spring from the seed of our wrong The question, after all, is not if free blacks are citizens, but if all citizens, irrespective of color, shall have equal rights before the law in all States The Constitutional Amendment is not for the four millions of freedmen, but for the one hundred millions of Americans who shall inhabit this country within a century, and for the five hundred millions that shall follow them We must strike out the word "negro" and insert "justice" The defective law which denies the civil equality of the black man hampers the liberty of the white man It is the spirit of caste, founded on color prejudice, which to-day makes perfect freedom of speech impossible in a large portion of the Union; and it will always be true that injustice to one class will react upon another, until the whole community is involved in the evil results Congress has been reinforced by public opinion to insist that the purpose of 1876 shall not be thwarted There may still be differences of opinion as to the best mode accomplishing the desired object—differences relating to details and to time more than to principles—but in some way the great end must be gained as the only certain guarantee to political quiet.—S F Bulletin

Ship Building on the Sound —A letter from Steilacoom to the Vancouver Register contains the following paragraph

An earnest effort will be made to do something at this place in the ship building line next spring There is at present one ship yard here, at which there is now on the stocks a fine schooner of about 150 tons. Mr H. G Williamson, the proprietor of this yard has already built two vessels here, one of which (the Eliza Walker) recently returned from a very successful cod fishing voyage The vessel he is now building is designed for the same business She will be ready to launch about the last of December next, and as soon as practicable thereafter he will lay the keel for another vessel. Several parties have been mentioned to me as contemplating coming here to engage in ship-building, and I have no doubt we shall soon have another yard established For this business Steilacoom affords very superior facilities, having a spacious harbor, no sea, no rocks, bold shores, and lumber delivered at the low price of eight dollars per thousand feet Vessels can be built here, I am informed by practical men at less than $25 per ton; of course exclusive of rigging Surely, with these advantages, Steilacoom ought to do something in the way of ship building, and would do much with the aid of a little capital. I will state here that I am authorized by a mill proprietor to offer lumber to build vessels at the mill (a very suitable place for the purpose) at $5 per thousand, the mill proprietor taking interests in the vessels built to the amount of the lumber bills To a builder of limited means this is certainly a good chance

A Montana Silver Lode —We find in the Montana Post of the 10th ult the following account of the yield of a silver lode in that Territory together with a notice of the process by which it is being worked

It affords us intense satisfaction to announce the complete success of the first trial of the cupel furnace of Professor Augustus Steitz, who has recently erected his works in the Rattlesnake District The ore has yielded eighty per cent of lead, and upon the 4th instant one ton was placed in the furnace and subjected to the heat for the space of six hours The lead was expelled and fifty pounds of pure silver remained But this important fact is over shadowed by another of a more satisfactory character Any person might secure a brick from such rich ore but few men could run so close to the assay and wonderful as it may appear, the loss in silver is between ¼ and ½ of one per cent We congratulate the company that own these works upon their good fortune in possessing this claim upon the Legal Tender Lode We also share with Professor Steitz the emotions of joy which must animate him at the present time He has gained a practical and scientific triumph, and we advise certain parties who wish to learn the proper manner in which to extract the precious metals from gangue to throw aside their absurd theories and take a few lessons from a younger but wiser teacher

Indicted —The New York Express of the 31st October says

Lieutenant Braine who claims to have held a commission in the ex Confederate navy and who seized the steamer Chesapeake during the late rebellion was brought up in the United States Court before Commissioner Jones this morning for a final hearing. The United States District Attorney stated that the Grand Jury had found an indictment against the accused for murder and piracy on the high seas Braine will be tried in the United States Circuit Court at the next session

A Highly Probable and Credible Story about Secretary Stanton

If the telegraph is to be believed, Secretary Stanton has had a quarrel with the President and is to leave the Cabinet as soon as he has finished his report which is to be presented with the other departmental reports next December But if the telegraph is to be believed, Secretary Stanton, in retiring, like an iron clad drawing sullenly out of battle has discharged a last shell from a fifteen inch gun, which, luckily falling upon the Presidential magazine has blown up the main store of ammunition provided by Andrew Johnson for his threatened dictatorship. Stanton in retiring, has discharged a Parthian arrow that has happily pierced the joints of the harness of the President's revolutionary schemes and effectually forestalled the design of making the United States army a political machine to be used in forcing upon the republic a dictatorship, for the telegraph says

The actual facts regarding the rumored resignation of Secretary Stanton are as follows He is now engaged in making out his report, and as soon as it is finished he will undoubtedly tender his resignation It has been found by the discovery lately made that Stanton has filled nearly all the vacancies in the regular army without the knowledge or assent of Johnson. He has been for some time making out the commissions and forwarding them to the appointees, with orders to them to report to General Grant for duty General Grant, supposing them (as appeared from the face of their papers) duly appointed by the President, has assigned them to duty, and they are now at service without the knowledge of the President On hearing this fact the President was very angry, and sent for Stanton and demanded an explanation The result was the retirement of Stanton as soon as he could make out his report, on which he is now engaged

If this report is true, the President's game is blocked, and the army cannot be used in support of his ambitious schemes The President entertained a design, which he was carrying out gradually, to fill all the places in the regular army with bread and butter officers, devoted to his policy and pledged to support him against Congress Men were promoted, not for services rendered to the country, but for services promised to the President Promotion was made to depend not upon patriotism, but upon partisanship The plot was to gradually proselyte the army and attach it to the fortunes of the President, by means of the power of appointment and promotion

But if the dispatch quoted be true, Secretary Stanton has performed the greatest service to the country by neatly heading off this game He has, it appears, quietly filled all the vacant offices in the army without consulting the President Not only that, but it is asserted that he has in conjunction with General Grant, immediately put his appointees at work in their several positions, so that the President cannot undo his work without actually dismissing from the service the officers appointed and promoted, any attempt at which would at once create an excitement and storm of indignation of itself fatal to any attempt to control the army as a Johnson political machine

General Grant is made to appear as not knowing anything about the matter He is the innocent, unsuspecting lay figure upon which the cunning Secretary clothed his new goods. But in reality, if the story is true, General Grant has, at least, quietly enjoyed the maneuver. It is only another bit of that easy and apparently unconscious strategy by which he has so often flanked and surprised the enemies of his country. It is impossible for the President or anybody else to blame him for "assigning them to duty," so they "are now at service without the knowledge of the President." As a matter of course, General Grant, on receiving the commissions from Secretary Stanton, was bound to suppose the commissions were made out by the President's order Being bound to suppose so, and it not being his duty to inquire into the Secretary's relations with the President, who shall dare accuse him of not supposing what he was legally bound to suppose? He received his orders through the regular channel and obeyed them It was no part of his duty to inspect the regular channel, or run to the President with suspicions of the regular channel before obeying orders Nevertheless, he has probably smoked his quiet cigar for a few weeks with an extra twinkle of satisfaction in his calm gray eye, as he saw the long line of the flanking column glide innocently around the President's position, and at last gain the objective point in the rear of the threatened dictatorship still unsuspected And, no doubt, while listening to the reports of the denouement with the most respectful official appearance of surprise, he finds it somewhat difficult to suppress a gentle chuckle of satisfaction at the adroit audacity and perfect success of the movement.

As for Secretary Stanton, if the story is true, he can well afford to retire He has provided thoroughly for the safety of the country so far as the Secretary of War can do so. He has headed off and forestalled any mischief that can be done by his successor He has worthily crowned a great and good work against the enemies of the republic, and as there is nothing left to do worthy of his great abilities and reputation, he may now escape from the control of such a master as Andrew Johnson not only with satisfaction to himself, but with credit and honor He will retire as the conqueror, as the master and not as the servant of Andrew Johnson, dismissed because he has proven himself the master —Detroit Post

Anti Republican Tendencies —We find the following in the speech of J. J. Stewart, the unconditional Union candidate for Congress in the Third District of Maryland

It has been long known to all men who have enjoyed the privilege of conversation with Secretary Seward that he has no faith in the people, or in republican government—that he is, in fact, a monarchist When the Electors of Maryland cast the last vote at Annapolis, they paid a visit to President Lincoln, after which they called upon Seward He said "Well, we have gone through the farce of another Presidential election" We were naturally surprised, and I asked him what he meant by it—that I thought the "election of Lincoln was as fair an election as was ever held in the country" He replied "Yes but then, you know, the best of us have not more virtue than will save us and the mass cannot be expected to be better than the individuals composing it. The original expression was a positive assertion which showed the conclusion of his mind—that he regarded the election as a farce"

Indian Massacre.—The Lassen Sage Brush, 17th instant, gives additional particulars of the late Indian massacre near Surprise Valley It says

In our last week's issue we mentioned some particulars of an Indian fight which occurred above Surprise Valley a few days since We have since learned from a reliable source some further particulars, which are as follows On the 24th of last month First Lieutenant John F Small, with 25 men of Company A, First U S Cavalry, left Camp Bidwell in search of the Indians who killed Mr Townsend some time since A party of eighteen Oregon Volunteers also joined the command On the 26th of October Lieut Small's party came upon the Indians among the hills above Goose Lake, and immediately attacked them, the whole party, seventeen in number, were left dead on the field with the exception of three squaws who were taken prisoners Private Nipoth Company A First Cavalry was wounded The murderers of Mr Townsend have met their deserved fate

The Pacific Railroad has been finished and the cars are running to the 100th meridian about 250 miles West of Omaha An excursion party recently took a trip to the terminus The Pawnees gave a grand war dance, for the amusement of the excursionists at Columbus, on the Loup Fork. A paper was printed on the cars during the trip, the press and type for which was furnished by the Omaha Republican

It is said that Napoleon when he was asked by Doctor O'Meara if he really thought he could invade England at the time he threatened to do so, replied in the following anagram "Able was I, ere I saw Elba." WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC [illegible]

The President's Message

The President has concluded to send his message to the unconstitutional body calling itself a Congress. This is well. Enough of the document has been received here to show the general tenor of the whole. The tone and style of argument much resemble the clap trap of the Cooperhead politicians during the late political struggle. The ground of his argument is the same that he took in his speeches on his celebrated stumping tour. So far as we have yet read he says nothing about having once been an Alderman, etc., nor does he mention the famous circle of which he claims to be sole inventor and discoverer. Perhaps we may find these things before we get through the message. In all other respects the document, so far as reported, is a revision of his old speeches and a re-statement of the testimony of Alexander H. Stephens before the Reconstruction Committee early last spring.

A Point of Honor

Of late the South has been besought in a strain of the most earnest eloquence by a class of public prints and orators in the North, not to give its sanction to the terms of settlement which the loyal millions have offered. Those who have been in rebellion are told that it would be inconsistent with their honor to accept those conditions. An appeal of this kind is employed as most likely to kindle the animosity of the South against the measures insisted on by those who conquered the rebellion. The honor of the South (so this exhortation runs) is at stake. She cannot, without self degradation, yield what is demanded. Now there is another view in which this case is to be considered. If the honor of the South is at stake in this matter, the honor of the North is at stake also. The North cannot recede without dishonor, from the demands she has made. The people who quelled armed opposition to the authority of their government cannot now acknowledge themselves defeated in the measures they have seen fit to take for the re-establishment of the Union on the basis of loyalty and equal rights. After what has passed, the triumph of the South in this matter would be most humiliating to the North. Every loyal man in both sections would feel himself dishonored by such a result. Every rebel, and every rebel sympathizer would be elated by such a victory, and would glory in the achievement, with all the pride of insufferable insolence. The honor of loyal men is involved in the issue of this controversy. Rebels will doubtless continue to talk about their honor, but it does not become men who have plundered custom houses, forts, mints and arsenals, who have notoriously committed treason and perjury and whose hands are still unwashed of the blood of their countrymen, to assume quite so much punctiliousness on a matter of this kind.

A Somewhat Serious Matter.—The following, it were almost superfluous to say, is from the Albany Confederate, and is a production of the same pen from which emanated those choice extracts which we gave last spring from old numbers of the Pike County Democrat:

We hope Johnson will have the courage of a Jackson. A large majority of the whole people of the United States are with Johnson, and they would sustain him in any policy of his own and their self preservation he might see proper to adopt, whether it should be to seize and imprison the ring-leaders of the faction opposed to him, or the more summary and just punishment of hanging them up by the neck until they are dead, dead, dead. A bold and successful coup d'etat on the part of President Johnson, is all that will save our country from all the horrors of another bloody Civil War.

Nothing could be more amusing than to witness the anxiety of these Copperheads about Johnson's pluck. Their minds are about equally balanced between the fear that he will prove a poltroon, and the hope that he will resort to violence to accomplish his ends. This is not a pleasant frame of mind to be in. They know that Johnson desires to take a bold and violent course, yet they fear that prudence will so prevail with him that he will let I dare not, wait upon I would. Hence these pathetically ridiculous exhortations, mingled with expressions of doubt as to whether Johnson is the man for the crisis. Is not the Confederate sensible that it is asking its "Moses" to undertake a very serious piece of business when it requests him to seize, imprison and hang the leaders of the party opposed to him? Let it, therefore, if he should show some natural hesitation, be patient with him.

The message of the Governor of Montana shows that the amount of Federal tax collected in the Territory during the last fiscal year, $113,134. The value of property in the Territory, as assessed for taxable purposes, is $3,057,274. The Territorial revenue this year has been $23,316. The debt of the Territory is $51,000, and the Governor says it can all be paid up within a year if taxes are properly assessed and collected. He recommends the adoption for the Territory of the civil code of California. The Territory is without public buildings of any kind.

We hear that Evans and Moore, of Olympia, Secretary and Collector, once Union men but now Copperheads, are making strenuous efforts to get a remonstrance against the constitutional amendment through the Washington Territory Legislature! We are surprised that these hungerers for official pap should content themselves with a proceeding like this. Why don't they use their influence to have the Legislature of their Territory flatly reject the amendment? Why so lukewarm in the cause of the master whom they are sold to serve?

Not Bad.—Here is a capital little anecdote of President Lincoln, narrated by a correspondent of the Brooklyn Union:

Lincoln was engaged one day with a Westerner who larded his talk freely with oaths. Interrupting him after one of his most copious discharges, the President looked up and said, with a serious face: "What denomination of Christians may you belong to?" "What denomination of Christians!" thundered the lank Westerner with blank astonishment. "I don't know as I belong to any, but if I am anything I'm a Presbyterian." "Hum! a Presbyterian," said Lincoln, "I thought you were an Episcopalian, you swear so like Seward."

The young metaphysician of the Statesman thus disposes of the whole question of impartial suffrage:

Indeed we cannot conceive of an individual blessed with an average measure of sanity, whose sympathies are so tropically luxuriant, that he can honestly commit himself to such a soaring scheme of indefinite, impracticable philanthropy since it is combatted alike by the instincts of the illiterate and philosophy of the sage.

This, of course, is conclusive.

We find the following in the Democratic Review, and give it further publicity for the benefit of whom it may concern:

Democratic Mayor.—It is with great pleasure that we announce the fact that the extremely loyal city of Portland is now under the Mayoralty of the old and worthy Democrat T. J. Holmes, Esq. This is a great victory to the Democracy of Portland and we heartily congratulate them on their success.

A short time ago it was stated that on the meeting of Congress resolutions would be introduced calling for full information on the subject of the action of Prussia as against American citizens and the whole matter thoroughly investigated.

Income in San Francisco.—During the month of October last the sum of $342,144 38 was paid by parties whose income did not exceed $5,000, and $316,906 *6 by parties whose incomes exceeded $5,000 during the past year.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Fellow Citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives:

After a brief interval the Congress of the United States resumes its annual legislative labors. An allwise and merciful Providence has abated the pestilence which visited our shores, leaving its calamitous traces upon some portions of our country. Peace, order, tranquility and civil authority have been formally declared to exist throughout the whole of the United States. In all the States civil authority has superseded the coercion of arms, and the people by voluntary action are maintaining their governments in full activity and complete operation. The enforcement of the laws is no longer obstructed in any State by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings. The animosities engendered by the war are rapidly yielding to the beneficent influences of our free institutions and to the kindly efforts of unrestricted social and commercial intercourse. An entire restoration of fraternal feeling must be the earnest wish of every patriotic heart, and we will have accomplished our greatest national achievement when, forgetting the sad events of the past and remembering only their instructive lessons, we resume our onward career as free, prosperous and united people.

In my message of the 4th of December 1865 Congress was informed of the measures which had been instituted by the executive with a view to the gradual restoration of the States in which the insurrection occurred to their former relations with the General Government. Provisional Governors appointed, creatures called Governors elected. Legislatures assembled and Senators and Representatives chosen to the Congress of the United States and Courts had been opened for the enforcement of laws long in abeyance. The blockade had been removed, custom houses re-established and the internal revenue laws put in force in order that the people might contribute to the internal income. Postal operations had been renewed and efforts were being made to restore them to their former condition and efficiency. The States themselves had been asked to take part in the high function of amending the Constitution and thus sanctioning the extinction of African slavery as one of the legitimate results of our struggle. Having progressed thus far the Executive Head found that it had accomplished nearly all that was within the scope of its Constitutional authority. One thing however, yet remained to be done before the work of restoration could be accomplished, and that was the admission to Congress of loyal Senators and Representatives for the States where the people had rebelled against the lawful authority of the General Government. This question devolved upon the respective houses which by the Constitution, are made the judges of the election returns and qualifications of their own members and its consideration at once engaged the attention of Congress. In the mean time the Executive plan having been proposed by Congress (?) continued its efforts to perfect as far as was practicable the restoration of the proper relation between the citizens of the respective States and the Federal Government, extending from time to time what the public interests seemed to require to the judicial revenue and postal systems of the country. With the advice and consent of the Senate the necessary officers were appointed, and appropriations were made by Congress for the payment of their salaries. The proposition to amend the Federal Constitution so as to provide for the abolition of slavery within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction was ratified by the sufficient number of States and on the 18th day of November 1865 it was officially declared to have become valid and a part of the Constitution of the United States. All of the States in which the insurrection had existed, promptly amended their constitutions so as to make them conform to the great change thus effected in the organic law of the land. They declared null and void all ordinances and laws of secession, repudiated all pretended debts and obligations created for the revolutionary purposes of the insurrection and proceeded in good faith to the enactment of measures for the protection and amelioration of the condition of the colored races. Congress, however yet refused to admit any of those States to representation, and it was not until towards the close of the eighth month of the session that an exception was made in favor of Tennessee by the admission of her Senators and Representatives.

I deem it a subject of profound regret that Congress has thus far failed to admit to seats loyal Senators and Representatives from the other States whose inhabitants with those of Tennessee had engaged in rebellion. Ten States, more than one-fourth of the whole number remained without representation. The seats of fifty members in the House of Representatives and of twenty members in the Senate, are yet vacant not by their own consent, not by a fractiousness of electors, but by the refusal of Congress to accept their credentials. Their admission, it is believed, would have accomplished much toward the renewal and strengthening of our relations as one people and removed a serious cause for discontent on the part of the inhabitants of these States. It would have accorded with the great principle enunciated in the Declaration of American Independence, that no people ought to bear the burden of taxation and yet be denied the right of representation. It would have been in consonance with the express provisions of the Constitution that each State shall have at least one representative, and that no State without its consent shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate. Those provisions were intended to secure to every State and to the people of every State, the right of representation in each House of Congress, and so important was it deemed by the framers of the Constitution that the equality of the States should be preserved that not even by an amendment of the Constitution can any State without its consent be denied a voice in that branch of the national Legislature. It is true that it has been assumed that the existence of States was terminated by rebellion and the acts of their inhabitants, and that the insurrection having been suppressed they were thence forward to be considered

[When the report had proceeded thus far the line broke somewhere beyond Corvallis. We hope to give the message in full to-morrow.]

STATE ITEMS

The Democratic Review of Salem has ceased publication. In taking his leave the proprietor Mr Noltner says: We now bid you farewell probably never to address you again as an editor or publisher.

The business of freighting up the Yamhill river has increased so much of late that the P. T. Co. have found it necessary to substitute the Echo in that trade for the Union, a smaller steamer heretofore running.

The Unionist says: We were last week shown by Messrs Hoyt & Wortley of this city a spooling machine, invented by themselves, a model of which they have prepared to send on to the Patent Office Department at Washington. It is designed to spool mixed yarns and is certainly of great utility. The Willamette Woolen Factory Company have one in operation and we are informed by Mr Hoyt, the Superintendent, that it saves at least seven per cent on the cost and labor of spooling mixed yarns for the looms. The model was made by [illegible] of Mr Rudevolt of this city and exhibits uncommon mechanical skill.

Dr Gwin Again.—The Bulletin's New York letter contains the following in regard to Gwin:

Among the passengers recently arrived from Liverpool per steamer China were Jake Thompson and Dr William M. Gwin. Mr Thompson landed at Halifax and expected to sojourn in Canada until his friends shall have succeeded in making it safer for him to return to Mississippi than he would find it at present. Dr Gwin landed at Boston and came immediately to this city. A gentleman who met him yesterday at the New York Hotel, states that he is in excellent health and as full of energy as he was two years ago, that his circumstances are greatly reduced and that he has come to the United States with a view of seeing what he can do to make a living for himself and family. I understand that the Doctor still owns a valuable cotton plantation in Mississippi which his brother is working for him with rather inadequate results.

In a recent address Gen Howard stated that the Freedmen's Bureau is now educating 150,000 freedmen and their children.

Nolan for the sum of $150 58 and interest and costs, I have this 3d day of December 1866 levied on the following described real estate of the said defendant's lying and being in Multnomah county State of Oregon known and described as beginning at the N W corner of L. C. Porter's land claim on the left bank of the Willamette river, thence N 14½° W 41 chains and 50 links (166 rods) to a stake from which a maple 12 inches diameter bears N 20° W 10 links, and a cedar 12 inches N 35° E 44 links, thence S 45° 30' E 50 links (70 rods) to stake, thence N 24° E 30 chains (120 rods) to a stake on the bank, thence down the river 18 chains (72 rods) to the place of beginning, containing 50 acres more or less. STOP THAT COUGHING

SOME OF YOU CAN'T, AND WE PITY you. You have tried every remedy but the ONE destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure, but is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by the surprising curative powers of

and with one accord give it their unqualified approbation. We now address ourselves to all who are unacquainted with this, the greatest Panacea of the age, for the healing of all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, assuring you that has cured thousands and it will cure YOU if you try it.

This invaluable medicine is pleasant to the taste, soothing, healing and strengthening in its effects, entirely free from all poisonous or deleterious drugs, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances.

Certificates from many prominent citizens of San Francisco accompany every bottle of

DR. G. W. BROWN

HAS located in Portland, in CARTER'S NEW BUILDING for the permanent cure of all private diseases such as syphilis, gonorrhea, gleet, strictures &c. He also calls the attention of those suffering with to call at his office and be at once restored. Surgical operations SKILFULLY performed on the EYES for film, cataract, strabismus or cross-eyes.

Below are some of the many testimonials:

This is to certify that I, John P. Jodwan, was blind for over nine years, and I tried all means of a cure and many doctors, and all of no effect, and I spent all the means I had. Finally, I had to become a county charge and when I was taken to Dr G W Brown and stated my case to him and misfortune, he at once commenced to treat my eyes, and now I am well and commend all those that are suffering with diseases of the eyes to call on Dr G W Brown. The reason why I do this is to let suffering humanity know where they can be cured.

J. B. JODWAN

State of Oregon, Marion County, ss.—Subscribed and sworn to before me this 2d day of November 1866.

SETH R. HAMMER, Notary Public

Saturday Feb 10 1866

This is to certify that my daughter was almost blind for over seven years, and was doctored by other physicians without obtaining any relief, when finally I took her to Dr G W Brown, who examined her case and at once began to give her treatment, and her sight has been entirely restored. I do this to let those who are suffering with diseases of the eyes know where they can obtain a cure. It has been three years since her eyes were cured, and they are yet sound.

THOMAS LIVINGSTON

Deer Creek Precinct, Douglas county, Oregon

Salem, July 21 1866

This is to certify that I was blind for over four months and almost blind for one year and a half. I tried several eye doctors but received no benefit. I had almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown, now of Salem. I was induced to try him. He performed a surgical operation on my eyes and gave me treatment. I soon began to recover and in a short time I was perfectly cured. I do this in justice to him who rescued me from a fate worse than death and also for the benefit of those who are laboring under similar afflictions, that they may know where they can get relief. It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured, and they still remain good. I can see to read the finest print without difficulty and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this the 21st day of July A D 1866.

THE OREGON RIVER ROUTE.—In spite of the strenuous efforts made by interested parties to establish the Chico route as a rival of that by the Columbia river there is still an occasional passenger and if we may believe our own eyes and common report there is still some freight going by way of the Columbia. There has been a steamer for San Francisco since the usual time for steamers to begin to come down but has carried away as many as she could accommodate and it has often happened that parties wishing to go down have been compelled to wait over a trip. On the other hand the freights to this port for the upper Columbia and Idaho have been almost enormous. Every steamer from San Francisco comes laden to her utmost capacity and still within a week or two the Columbia river steamers have carried away very heavy freights and even now when the Blue mountains are receiving some snow the freights for the upper country are going freely. How is it with Chico? The Idaho World of the 24th ult. says "We learn that the stages have ceased running for the season over the Chico route. The line will resume travel at the earliest practicable day next spring." So, how is the Chico road has closed for the season! Traveling will at the earliest practicable day next spring. Well, that, we take it, is pretty good for a route which promises to be a rival of the Columbia. The very civil the extremely military managers of the Chico route as well as congratulations at the immense success of their arrangements. In connection with this subject of the Columbia river route we quote the following from a recent correspondence of the San Francisco Bulletin: "There is one thing sure—and which I mentioned in one of my communications over a year ago—that if the [illegible] of San Francisco were so negligent about the interests of the Northern coast, that capital from abroad would be offered to run a line of clipper ships from East ports to Portland, Oregon. That San Francisco is and always will be, the commercial emporium of the Pacific, none can doubt, and it should be of great importance to its merchants to become well acquainted with the richness of the Northern mines and the trade that will be the result from the working of the quartz and placer mines in Idaho and Montana Territories. That the Chico route has its advantages for those living in [illegible], we admit but to ship merchandise up the Sacramento, thence pack across some 400 miles from the head of navigation on the Sacramento to Owyhee or Boise, is not, and never can, compete with the Columbia. Already a line of vessels are formed to run from New York and other Eastern ports, direct for [illegible] river."

"GOING, GOING."—The last number of Ireland's Enterprise has an article on the declining prospects of Victoria under the head of "Going Going." Brother Ireland while Local of the OREGONIAN waged a long and tough battle in behalf of Portland, against the press and the [illegible] of Commerce of Victoria and even now that he has become part proprietor of Lowell which has no chance of having a rival, he cannot forego the pleasure of giving his old enemy a dig under ye ribs [illegible]. We beg to suggest to our neighbor up in Lowell, that were he here to see, and talk with, the Victorians who have chucked off on that particular part of Her Majesty's dominions he would publish his next article under the head of "Coming, coming." They are coming and no mistake, and, what is better, many of them are settling down to business in Portland. But we started out to quote a little from the Enterprise. It says:

"It would be hard indeed to find a more polished model of the [illegible] of Portland and the entire State of Oregon than Victoria has been for years past. No engine of war was battled or battered more perseveringly against bulwarks than has the mighty Chamber of Commerce, of Victoria, [illegible] and clanged away at the interests of this commonwealth. But, like Othello the [illegible] of Victoria is gone—or to say the least, is rapidly disappearing and old Oregon stands forth [illegible]. By almost every mail we hear of heavy failures in Victoria. To speak in a general way we have but little sympathy in [illegible] with the sufferers." That is a little naughty according to the moral code, but we can't help endorsing it, not so much that we rejoice in the misfortunes of Victoria as we glory in the growth and rapidly improving prospects of Portland and the large territory of which she is the metropolis.

THE CITY JAIL.—This institution is in a condition which calls for the immediate attention of the Council. It is both damp and cold, and a totally unfit place for the confinement of the unfortunates who are its customary tenants. The greater number of the persons lodged in it by the Police, belong to that class who have no money, [illegible] and are generally scantily clad [illegible] when picked up is drunk and frequent [illegible] with rain or mud. The officer arresting can [illegible] better than to wrap the prisoner in a blanket and leave him on the floor to sleep off his drunk. It was thus the case, during the cold weather of last winter, [illegible] were brought up to the Court so benumbed as to require the Court to wait for them to thaw out before proceeding to trial. The jail roof does leak as it did last winter, but it is still a place to [illegible] the health of whomsoever may be placed in it for [illegible] this time. All this may be remedied by a [illegible] expenditure for repairs, a stove and a few cords of wood. The police officers visit the jail often enough, usually, to keep a moderate fire going, so that no expense [illegible] incurred for a person to attend specially to that [illegible]. It is a little unfashionable to say anything in [illegible] of the vagrants and unfortunate fellows who figure [illegible] our Police Courts, but humanity dictates that [illegible] be tempered with all the [illegible] that is not [illegible] by justice. The good reputation of this city [illegible] other forbids the confinement, like beasts, of [illegible] beings. It is due to the City [illegible] and to the [illegible] whom it represents and especially the dictate of humanity, that steps be immediately taken to make the [illegible] jail something better than an Andersonville prison.

[illegible] CASE.—The case of W U Vandenberg, charged with adultery, was resumed yesterday morning by Justice Gradon. Mr Hill appeared in place of Mr [illegible] for the State, and Mr Mitchell for the defence. [illegible] motion moved to have the deposition of Mrs [illegible] taken, she being too ill to attend the trial. The [illegible] objected and the Court denied the motion. Mr [illegible] then moved that the Court repair to the residence of [illegible] and take her testimony, to which the defence [illegible] but the Court granted the motion. [illegible] with the accused, the attorneys and witnesses then repaired to the New York Hotel, where Mrs [illegible] was found in bed, to which she is confined by her [illegible]. Being sworn and informed that she was not bound to answer as to criminate herself, she declined to answer as to the specific charge in the complaint against Vandenberg. There being no other witness to the material point, the defendant was, of course, discharged. In her previous statements to her husband and [illegible] she had fully criminated Vandenberg in several [illegible] of a decidedly discreditable character. The [illegible] is that she declined to testify, yesterday, under the apprehension that her evidence might be used against her in a similar prosecution. Vandenberg, of course, tells his story, and according to that, he played the part of JOSEPH to her POTIPHAR'S WIFE, all the way through. It is difficult to tell where the truth lies.

CIRCUIT COURT—SHATTUCK, JUDGE.—The following were [illegible] of Tuesday, the 4th,

State of Oregon vs Ah Shuo, jointly indicted with Ah [illegible] for larceny of clothing from the store of Barman Brothers, verdict of jury, not guilty, and the defendant [illegible]

State of Oregon vs Jim He Kee, indicted for larceny of clothing from the store of Levy, the day was occupied in taking evidence, submitted to the jury at 5 o'clock P.M.

J. Stewart and P J McGowan, jurors, were each fined [illegible] for being fifteen minutes late at the assembling of the Court at 1 o'clock and detaining the Court.

State of Oregon vs Alex. Campbell, indicted for keeping a tippling house for the purpose of traffic on Sunday, jury impanelled.

COUNTY COURT—MARQUAM, JUDGE.—This Court began its [illegible] term on Monday, 3d inst and had the following [illegible]

In the matter of the estate of Buell Woodward deceased, the sales of lot No 6 in block No 9, in the city of Portland, to W E Fain, and lot No. 8 in block No 9, to [illegible] Van Rensselier were confirmed.

[illegible] vs. H Cook judgment for plaintiff for [illegible]

Tuesday, December 4th—P J McGowan vs. W S Ladd et al, change of venue to Clackamas county.

[illegible] tells us of a wicked and perverse [illegible] who sought for a sign and could not find it. [illegible] day, a large sign floating down the river and judging from its tattered and torn condition, it may be the [illegible] sign sought for by the ancients, for all we [illegible] to the contrary. It looked as though it had [illegible] down from antiquity—a point somewhat above [illegible] though it couldn't be made out, certainly [illegible] somebody had lost something.

[illegible] COURT—HOFFMAN, JUDGE.—On Tuesday morning, Patrick Downey who seems to have no business but to get drunk, was up again for being dead drunk and lying in the street. He was wet through and through and pretty thoroughly chilled by his night's lodging in the [illegible]. The Recorder humanely declined to send him back, and so Pat went free.

PUFFED.—The editor of the Albany Democrat complains that he has hitherto been a patron of the P T [illegible] and has paid them big money for small services. He sums up his grievances by charging the company with having plucked somebody a goose. Probably that's what's the matter with the irate editor.

CORRECTION.—We found on the streets, yesterday, a considerable controversy about whether the Oriflamme left San Francisco on Friday last or on Tuesday as we announced, yesterday morning. Our information about the matter was from a gentleman who is reliable in such matters.

THE ALERT'S FREIGHT.—Tuesday the Alert brought down [illegible] boxes apples, 3 boxes merchandise 531 sacks flour, 3 barrels lard, 20 cases goods 1 parlor stove 1 [illegible] 1 stove pipe, 1 trunk, 1 barrel 8 sacks oats and 4 boxes eggs. She, also, brought about thirty passengers.

CHANGE OF TIME.—Mr Weidler the Agent of the C O [illegible] Steamship Co., has changed his advertisement announcing the sailing of the Oriflamme. She will leave here on Saturday, the 8th, instead of Thursday the 6th as heretofore advertised.

EARLY CLOSING HOUR.—We understand that the merchants of Oregon City have adopted the rule of closing their business houses at eight o clock every evening in the week except Saturday.

FROM THE CASCADES.—The Hunt arrived at a late hour yesterday, from the Cascades with about twenty passengers and a few horses. There was no connection with the boats at Celilo.

CASTINGS.—We noticed yesterday on Couch & Flanders' wharf, a lot of large and heavy cast iron plates for the Oregon Iron Works at Oswego.

APPLE BOXES.—The Fannie Troup almost every day [illegible] takes a considerable number of ready made apple boxes, from her wharf here.

THE MONTANA.—This steamer is announced by telegraph to have sailed for Portland yesterday [illegible]

"I take pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains Sores Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for Burns, Bruises Sores, Rheumatism &c and all say it acts like magic. J W HEWITT,

"The sprain of my daughter's ankle occasioned while skating last winter was entirely cured in one week after she commenced using your celebrated Mustang Liniment.
Gloucester, Mass Aug 1 1865 ED SEELY"

It is an admitted fact that the Mexican Mustang Liniment performs more cures in shorter time, on man and beast than any article ever discovered. Families, livery men and planters should always have it on hand. Quick and sure it certainly is. All genuine is wrapped in steel plate engravings bearing U S Stamp of DEMAS BARNES & Co over the top.

An effort has been made to counterfeit it with a cheap stone-plate label. Look closely!

Died They in Vain

Died they in vain—in vain—
Those brave heroic men
Who on the Southern plain
Hillside in swamp and glen
Pour out your blood like rain
Died they in vain?

Did our young Ellsworth fall
On the Rebellion's marge
That Treason might enlarge
Its hateful sway?
Or died he to sustain
The right alone to reign
Throughout the whole domain
Of loyalty?

Fell Winthrop—sainted one!—
Ere victory was won
Ay ere had well begun
The deadly strife—
That Freedom's cause might fall
And they alone prevail
Who fiercely did assail
The nation's life?

That traitors might go free
Their crimes unpunished be
And loyal people see
The victory won
Over the rebel host
At such a fearful cost
Worse worse than if 'twere lost
As soon as won?

Did Baker, Lyon fall—
McPherson Cook and Hall
Brave Kearney Shaw and all
The rest in vain?
Is the great victory
Won by their blood to be
Barren, to the free
Fruitless of gain?

O ye whose comrades fell,
Struck down by steel or shell
While fighting all so well
Died they in vain?
And ye survivors, who,
(Scarred veterans) meet our view—
Was your devotion too,
All, all in vain?

No! by that martyred one,
Who when his work was done,
And the great triumph won
Was foully slain!
No! by the sacred dead
By all the blood they shed,
It shall not now be said
They died in vain!

—Boston Transcript

A Voyage in 1815—Crossing of the Atlantic by a Sail Boat.

The Courrier des Etats copies from l'Evenement an interesting account of the voyage of a French boat across the Atlantic in 1815, which was published in Paris a few weeks ago by Mary Gaston, a well known writer for Parisian journals. The facts seem to be well substantiated, and, if true, take from the little Red, White and Blue the credit of being the first sail boat to cross the ocean. Marie Gaston says in substance that in 1815, when the Great Napoleon went to the Isle of Aix, with the view of surrendering himself to the English, an old naval Lieutenant, named Vildieu, proposed to the Emperor to carry him to America out of the very teeth of the English cruisers. This Vildieu was a rabid Bonapartist, as well as a good seaman, having made a specialty of sailing small boats to the open sea. He insisted that he was willing to go to the end of the world with the Brise Cailloux, the name of a little craft which he placed at the disposal of his Emperor.

Napoleon listened for a long time to his arguments without speaking a word, but pacing up and down the apartment, at length he stopped and contemplated the ocean for some minutes, then he dropped his head upon his breast and that was all. He had no confidence in Vildieu's project. The ocean is treacherous! Better trust to the English!

Some months afterwards Vildieu, who had taken the Emperor's refusal much to heart, and wishing to prove to Napoleon's friends that the project of a flight to America was not impracticable upon this same little craft, set sail in her from La Rochelle, with two other persons, of whom the youngest was his own son.

The passage was long and rough. The Brise Cailloux, carefully prepared for the trial, had on board several kegs of fresh water, some biscuit and pemmican. As for fresh meat, they could not think of it, and a hen coop would have filled up the lilliputian hold. Up to the last day the distribution of provisions and water was regulated with the greatest prudence, and it was to that fact solely that the crew owed their safety. However, this saline regimen grew at last to be somewhat unpalatable. Mouths became dry and suffered from thirst, but thirsty or not, two rations of water per day were served out and no more.

One day, when the sea was calm, something round was seen floating near the boat. It proved to be an apple—a good sound apple in the open ocean. It had doubtless fallen from some passing vessel. It was presented to the captain, as his right, but he being a good prince shared it with the others, and there was great joy that day on board Brise Cailloux. The passage had its pleasant moments, as we have seen, but it had also its hours of anxious suspense and suffering, gales of wind, nights without sleep, and long stormy days. At times when the sea ran too high—trust in God! The helm was lashed, the sails furled, and the crew, crawling beneath the deck, let the tempest blow itself out. When the storm was over, our navigators got on deck again, and pursued their voyage again to the westward.

At length, after six weeks, the coast of America was descried. And it was time. Some hours later the Brise Cailloux entered port, and as the roadstead was too deep for her little anchor, she made fast alongside a large frigate which was anchored there. The officer of the deck looked down upon them with astonishment. "Where are you from?" Our three heroes lifted up their hats and replied, "From France." He could scarcely believe them.

This narration was made to M Marie Gaston by M. Etienne Vildieu, the son of the old Lieutenant above named. He was a boy who made one of the crew, and was the last survivor of them. The young sailor of 1816 was then an old officer in the revenue service, and the writer, who knew him intimately, and used to go with him on his inspection trips, often heard him allude to this trip across the Atlantic, and his father's interview with the great Napoleon. Vildieu, who had been wrecked eighteen times, and had saved many lives by his intrepidity in times of danger, was finally drowned while attempting to rescue some shipwrecked passengers in a storm on the French coast.

TWO DOLLARS AND A HALF ONLY.—The New York Nation of October 18th, speaking of the disaster of the Evening Star, says

The expenditure of two dollars and a half would probably have saved the Evening Star and the lives of three hundred miserable people aboard of her. She went down in a gale, "hurricane" it is called by some people, in which a small boat lived and came to land. The ship was perfectly unmanageable and lay like a log till the waves broke her to pieces and sent her to the bottom. She was unmanageable because the starboard rudder-chain got out of the sheave. This is a part of the machinery of the steering apparatus, and it is sufficient to say of it that it is of the nature of a pulley block, through which the rudder chain above mentioned may be supposed to pass over a wheel. Make a cheap sheave, and the chain slips off it easily, and command of the rudder is lost. Pay a little more for a sheave and you get one guarded with iron, from which the rudder chain cannot slip.

OPPOSED TO CONFEDERATION.—A dispatch from New York, Nov. 1st, says

A Montreal special states that a remonstrance against Confederation addressed to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, has been published here to-day. It is a document of great length, entering very fully into the history of the scheme, and is signed by about one third of the members of Parliament representing Lower Canada constituencies. It protests against precipitancy on a subject concerning the highest and most enduring interests of the country, and asks that the subject be sent back to the people of those Provinces for an expression upon it of their calm and deliberate judgment. The list of signatures is headed by the names of Darion, Holton Habedeur, Nurturgton, Laformebarz, all ex Ministers of the Crown.

When the great Richelieu died his head was separated from his body and preserved. After several months of research the head has at length been found in the possession of an ancient family in Bretagne, and forthwith sent to Paris to the Minister de l'Instruction Publique. Those who were present at the opening of the box describe the head as in a wonderful state of preservation. The eyebrows, whiskers, imperial and mustache are of a reddish color, and quite perfect. one eyelid was closed, the other open. the flesh of course, was black. It bore something the appearance of a mask but not at all unpleasant.

THE THUNDERER OUTDONE.—The New York Tribune of October 13th contained the following excusable bit of self laudation

The last number of the London Times, now on our table, contains 26¼ columns of reading matter of which not quite 1¼ columns are by telegraph. To-day's issue of the Tribune contains 48 columns of reading matter of which 6 columns are by telegraph. The Times sells in London for 6 cents in specie, and in New York for 20 cents currency. The Tribune is sold for 4 cents in currency. The size of the two papers is very nearly the same, the Tribune's pages being a trifle larger.

John Bull's Reflection on the Monroe Doctrine

The letter from an American correspondent at Philadelphia published in yesterday's paper seems very decisive as to the impending fate of the Mexican Empire. The appointment of General Dix to the Legation of the United States at the Court of the Tuileries is looked upon on the other side of the Atlantic as indicative of a settled purpose of the Cabinet at Washington to bring that matter to a speedy issue. To our mind it was impossible to entertain any doubt on the subject at least not since the information conveyed by the American Minister at the Court of Vienna that the Union would no longer tolerate the embarkation of auxiliary troops destined to support the Emperor Maximilian. That measure was a serious one though it made little noise at the time because Austria had her hands full of other business, and Europe was on the eve of a contest which gave her little leisure to attend to trans Atlantic affairs. The conduct of America was hardly defensible on any principle of international law as hitherto acknowledged as it interfered with the indisputable rights to mutual help of two independent States allied with one another, with neither of which the Republic was at war. It was the first practical application of the Monroe doctrine and revealed the recovery of the Union from the death of the civil war the revival of her old pretensions and her determination to carry everything with a high hand. The state of things had evidently changed from what it was towards the end of the year 1864 when the Republic had to put up with the landing of a Belgian and an Austrian legion on the sacred soil of the Western Continent.

The intimation however, had a different aim from that which it bore on the surface. The address was to Austria but the note was intended for France. With France herself America was in a hurry. The Emperor Napoleon had thrown out clear hints that the French occupation of Mexico was drawing to a close. The recall of his troops was with him less a matter of choice than of necessity, and America was aware of the wisdom of building a golden bridge for a retreating foe. She wished for no quarrel with France, she set immense store by French friendship. In the worst extremities of the terrible trial she had just gone through she had always evinced the fondest predilection for France, less, perhaps, from real feeling than with a view to raise the envy and jealousy of another Power to which she was then less friendly. Although the sympathies of America have lately been engrossed by a more congenial object, she was not so deeply in with new love as to wish herself altogether off with the old one. She was in no mood to proceed to extremities with her former friend, and she considered the evacuation of Mexico as a matter already amicably settled. The Emperor Napoleon, who had also come to the same conclusion, was anxious for a compromise to the last. He thought he could deal with Mexico as he had done with Rome. The State which was to be deprived of the support of the French troops could still rely on French "protection," and this protection should take the shape of mercenary legions. It was at this juncture that America stepped in with her veto, by which she signified to France that 'she, France, should go, and no one else should come in her place.'

Under such circumstances it would seem, to say the least, quite superfluous that General Dix or any other American diplomatist should go to Paris to "urge the withdrawal of the French troops, the abdication of the Emperor Maximilian, and the downfall of the empire,' for if the messenger tarries till November, the compliance is likely enough to anticipate the demand. Nor do we think that President Johnson will reap any great benefit by a show of "vigorous policy abroad" and by "pushing the Mexican question to extremity," because on this Mexican subject there are no two opinions in the States, the Republicans would be no less resolute about it than the Democrats, and if Mr Seward has hitherto recommended a mild and conciliatory policy, he only acted upon a conviction which ought to be shared by the most impatient among his countrymen, that the Mexican question is hastening towards a spontaneous solution, without any urging or pushing of friends or foes.

If there is any man who should be condoled with on account of the final upshot of this sorry Mexican business, it is not Maximilian, it is that other Emperor out of whose brain the idea of a transatlantic Empire sprung, like Minerva from the head of Jupiter, full grown and armed to the teeth, and who, in the consciousness of his failure, has not even the meagre consolation of sharing the blame with his advisers and abettors. The subjugation of Mexico was the Emperor Napoleon's own scheme, and it rested on two very natural, but, as events proved, very decided mistakes—one of which was his firm belief in the irreconcilable schism of the American Union, the other a conviction that internal quiet in France was not to be secured without the diversion of some great foreign enterprise. In both these errors Napoleon had at the time the concurrence of ninety nine out of a hundred thinkers in Europe. However, it is much easier to fall into an error, even of so great a magnitude as the building up of a Mexican Empire, than to have the courage and magnanimity to acknowledge it by backing out with a silent resignation, and it is in all probability on a retrograde errand of that nature that Gen. Castelnau lately embarked for Vera Cruz.—London Times, October 17th.

WHIPPING THE COPPERHEADS.—A recent number of the Huntsville (Ala) Advocate has the following which we recommend to the careful perusal of the Herald, Statesman and other Copperhead papers

The result of the elections in the Northern States should teach our people what little reliance there is to be placed in such Copperhead papers as the New York News, Metropolitan Record, Day Book, Cincinnati Enquirer Chicago Times, &c. These papers opposed the war, and consequently have no influence North among the masses. They pander to the passions and prejudices of our people for "greed of ungodly grain," reckless how much they injure the South by misleading it and placing it in a false position. These papers and Copperheads North have no more ability to help our people than they have to help the Chinese and are odious to the people who sustained the Government and the Union through the war. Yet they made our people believe they were going to overthrow the Union Republican party and get the control of the Government! They have deceived, betrayed, and ruined our people. Their embrace is death—their support destruction.

"FOOL HENS."—The Sacramento Bee is our authority for the following

We are indebted for the following to a gentleman who speaks by the card. If anybody disputes it, they can settle it with him or go and see for themselves. "Last July I traveled over the Lo Lo Fork Trail, which connects Lewiston with the Bitter Root Valley, in Idaho Territory. Along the trail I saw numerous birds resembling the partridge in every particular, with the exception that they are not easily frightened but are so tame that a person with a cane could easily capture a whole flock, consisting of from six to fifteen. The meat is of a whitish color, and no one could tell them from a partridge in the East. In the northern country they go by the name of "fool hens," and are very fat, living off buds and whortleberries. They inhabit exclusively the mountain regions."

DRYING UP OF THE MISSISSIPPI.—Old steamboat men declare that the signs of the past four or five years point to the permanent drying up of the Mississippi river. There is certainly some change taking place in our climate that is affecting our lakes and rivers. The average of water is steadily decreasing. There are many theories advanced to explain this. One is that the climate is undergoing a change, which seems plausible as those who have studied the meteorology of our State are convinced that this change is taking place. Another theory is that the cultivation of the country, destruction of forests and other physical causes have tended to decrease the rain fall and retard the flowing of extra moisture into the stream. Whatever may be the cause the effect certainly exists, and the same thing has been seen on all of the western rivers, which are gradually shrinking up.—Western Paper

GENERAL LOGAN.—The following is an interrogatory put by a Copperhead to General Logan, during one of his speeches in Indiana, and the answer:

Copperhead—A few years ago when you were a Democrat the Republicans called you "Dirty work Logan." Are you doing the dirty work for the Republican party now?

General Logan—Yes sir. I am skinning Copperheads and it is the dirtiest work I ever did but it has to be done.

THE SOUTH.—A gentleman recently from New Orleans informs the editor of the New Bedford Mercury that in a hotel in that city he heard the following toast proposed and drank

Here's to the man that drew the trigger
That shot the man who freed the nigger

Facts of this sort are so numerous at the South that we cannot help regarding them as signs of a widely prevalent feeling.

AN ASIATIC RAILWAY.—The railway between Calcutta and Bombay is about 1,000 miles long, and is traversed by trains in about four days. The only through traffic at present consists of mail and cargo. European passengers cannot travel the whole distance on account of the heat.

King Andy I

The following is from that Conservative Republican journal the Cincinnati Commercial

The publishers of Harper's Weekly, keenly alive to the public appreciation of what is truly picturesque in their business, have furnished the readers of their last issue with a full page engraving of a design by the famous artist Nast, "How King Andy I will look and what he will do." The artist has furnished him to us seated on his throne bedecked with royal splendor, with the appearance for all the world of one born to command without serving any apprenticeship to the king business, either as a village Alderman or County Supervisor, both of which offices if we mistake not Andy has filled to the lively satisfaction of the people of Greenville Tennessee. There is an air of stolid seriousness about his countenance that doth well befit a king, and we are gratified to see that he manifests none of that royal uneasiness in which Shakspeare would have us believe the head of one who wears a crown can't help lying. On the right of the majestic Andrew stands the venerable my Lord What's His Name, wearing a medal marked "290"—the original name of the Alabama—with the appearance of one at whose bidding the winds and the sea would be hushed into repose, yet who is modestly content with the control of the naval affairs of the kingdom. In the event of a refusal to settle the Alabama claims, we trust His Brittanic Majesty will be furnished by His American Majesty with a copy of this picture. She is made of sterner stuff than we are disposed to give her credit for, if she does not immediately on seeing my Lord Giddeon's Neptunian profile send him a check in full for all claims. The Earl of Weathersfield will certainly do the business. On the left of His Excellency (beg pardon—His Royal Highness) is Prime Minister William, Duke of Auburn. He is devoting some spare moments to the capital punishment of a number of unruly subjects who, in the days of the Republic, were known as Radicals. They form a procession in single file out of the Capitol building in the distance and for the most part have a funeral look about them that ought to move to pity a heart less stony than the noble Duke's. Thad Stevens has already been brought to the block and must soon lose his head. All it wants is a descent of the ax which is uplifted in an awful manner. Wendell Phillips comes next. He is waiting his turn, with a countenance more in sorrow than in anger evidently willing to take back all he said about "deposing the President," if he could but get His Royal Highness into a forgiving mood. But the king hath said it, and Wendell must submit as gracefully as he can. Then, there is Forney—not a dead duck just yet, but in all human probability very likely to be one, soon as the headsman can dispose of the two who precede him in the road to death. Sumner follows. Poor man! Before he is half through with his honeymoon, he is to fall a victim to offended majesty. One can not help pleading for him on account of his domestic relations, but it is evidently no use. The noble duke has a duty to perform, and must turn a deaf ear even to a voice from the bridal chamber. Ben Butler is fifth in the procession. He marches up to his fate with stoic indifference and if it were allowable to speak in the presence of the king, would no doubt say something unpleasant to the royal ear. But has the kingly heart no compassion for lovely woman? It seems not, Miss Anna Dickinson follows close upon the heel of Butler, and will doubtless share the solemn fate of her brethren in the crime of disloyalty. As we gaze upon the sad spectacle, we cannot help wishing that some friendly violence were near to whisper into the ear of offended majesty the name of one whose intercession has never been unheeded. Why wasn't Mrs Cobb sent for?

Nast's pictures have come to be the most remarkable feature of the best illustrated paper in the country. We have had nothing like them heretofore in America. They surpass the best cartoons of Punch in its palmiest days.

THE TEMPORAL POWER OF THE PAPACY.—A Florence letter of October 10th, to the N. Y. Times has the following

Although the temporal power of the Papacy seems to be near its end, yet in newspapers and in conversation, attacks nearly as violent as ever are made upon the head of the Church. The comical papers are busy as at any time before, amusing the public by holding the Pope and the ecclesiastics up to ridicule. An extreme radicalism as to the Church seems to have got hold of the whole Italian community. The decay of reverence is everywhere apparent. The spirit of irreligion is widespread, and in a country more liberally supplied with churches, perhaps, than any other. Observance of religious offices is neglected, and attendance is continually falling off. Religious processions in the streets are done away with by law, and this powerful means of making an appeal to the common people no longer exists. The religious orders are abolished, their property taken possession of by the State, and the handful of monks left, put on slender pensions for the rest of their lives. These changes are destroying much of the ancient social picturesqueness of Italy, which, to us coming from prosaic lands, formerly had such a charm. The shrines at the angles of the streets and cross-roads remain, but they are not ornamented with festive lamps and hangings such as, on sacred days, drew groups of devotees years ago. When the Ave Maria bells ring we do not see the hat lifted and the sacred sign made in recognition of God's presence, as was formerly so common with men and women of every social condition. Half the poetry of Italian life seems to be gone. Is this growing radicalism by and by to strip everything bald?

A race horse having been recently killed in South Carolina, by lightning, the owner said that there was some consolation in knowing that nothing but a streak of lightning ever caught him.

DANFORD'S
Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Lamp!

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT OF SOME SORT IS A UNIversal necessity. A Safe Cheap and Brilliant one is a Luxury—a luxury only enjoyed heretofore by those who live in large cities where Gas is used. Years of study and much capital have been exhausted in experiments to produce a lamp wherein the ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil could be used without a chimney, and without unpleasant odor while in use. That fruitful source of expense trouble and annoyance the chimney is in DANFORD'S COAL OIL GAS LAMP avoided. It is the most perfect Lamp and will entirely supersede all other Coal Oil Lamps. It is the cheapest artificial light that can be used yielding the light of an ordinary six feet gas burner for less than [illegible] cent per hour or double the quantity of light of an ordinary Chimney Lamp for one third the cost. It will burn when turned down to a taper-light ten hours for a cent. Is free from smoke can be carried from room to room and the wind will not blow it out.
